Sao Paulo, Brazil – The website I am the Walker . org, which aggregated content created by walking artists from around the world, has been rebranded as walk listen create . org, updating its tagline to “Home of walking artists”.

The new website, using the name walk · listen · create, has also expanded its remit, allowing for walking artists to share their walking-related events and artistic pieces, collecting the submitted works in an open, accessible catalogue.

walk · listen · create is also the new home of Sound Walk September (SWS), the annual global event bringing together scores of sound walks. In its last instalment in September 2019, SWS saw over 80 events organised in dozens of countries.

The new website is the cooperative creation of Andrew Stuck, founder of the Museum of Walking, Geert Vermeire, creator of Made of Walking, and Babak Fakhamzadeh, an award winning locative app developer.

By expanding its scope, walk · listen · create foresees its website to become the central place for walking artists to virtually meet and share their work, on a global scale.

About the creators

Andrew, Geert and Babak have extensive experience and expertise in working as and with walking artists from around the world. They've organised dozens of events, several festivals and a range of applications.
