

Animals in the Wood

Good photo, for a phone; the definition in the twists of the bark.

How to respond? Tweely anthropomorphic, given he wasn't. And surely the meaning doesn't include animals?

Wonder....

Shared subconscious - the language of images - he sees images of animals because the tree sees him as an animal.

Actually it's the dryad not the trees per se, but trying to argue that would be completely pointless.

As far as she was concerned the theory held good. But then he always said she had theories and laughed.

How are you today?

Looking at the photo of the tree. You have a very good phone.

Maybe it's the operator.

(Let that one go)

Is it a rabbit?

How can it be a rabbit - it doesn't have ears

Yes it does. (dark bits going up from the head)

More meerkat...

(So the tree sees me rabbit, him meerkat. Interesting!)

Why do you always see animals in the trees?

I don't know

I have a theory?

Not another theory.

Perhaps better left then....

What do you want from your theories?

For someone to respond - 'Yes, I see.'

Then you'd be on your own in the universe

I am (actually we all are all on our own in exactly the same universe)

There could be other universes - like in Everything, Everywhere, All at Once.

Ummm....(a spectacularly unsuccessful outing to see this at the....
